This message is about the path of life. Have you ever wondered when something bad happens to you, why it happens? This message is about the path of life...everybody has one. Your path is always chosen for you. If something bad ever happens to you, don't think about it as a bad thing. Think about it as you getting closer to your destination. Make the right choice in your path and good things will happen.

It's like if you are going somewhere. You are on your path to head there. Just like in life, you have a path...the path you are going to. You set that path and the path was set for you. Your life path you don't pick; it was chosen for you. This might take deep thinking, but when you think about it, that when things happen to you that may be bad or good, it is a part of your path. You take the wrong turns sometimes on your path, and sometimes you take a right turn.

You won't reach your destination until you start your path. If your route is going where you should be going in your life, then your path should be good. Follow your destiny. Your path is something that is really important. If you follow it you can get great rewards. If you go off track there could be consequences. Your path isn't always meant to be good during the time you go through it. You might not have a good path while you are on earth, but who knows what happens whenever you are going into heaven.

It all matters on your path what happens after your earth life. You never know what is going to happen, but if you follow your path it is more likely to be a good reward than if you don't. Your path is something that when you follow it, it always has a reward. There is no time that tells when it is going to happen. Who knows? It could be the next day. Who knows? It could be in a year. Who knows? You might not see it, and then you think it is never going to happen. Then you get off track and you mess up your entire path. You need to follow your path always.

You are thinking that if your path is set for you, then why would you have to make the right choices. Because that is up to you. Your path is set for you; your goal is to follow it. It is just like if you have a GPS, you are supposed to follow it; you are not supposed to go your own way. The thing about that is that life is different. It is not like a GPS. Life is yours. You need to make it yours. If you don't go on your path, you are pretty much living a different life.

Don't let anybody else change your path.

It doesn't matter who they are, because in all honesty, what happens if your path goes wrong and theirs is going right? All because you made that wrong decision to let them change your path. You need to follow your path. Don't follow somebody else's...follow yours.
